Brother Vision Nary's Quandary

Rodrick E. Conerly, Executive Director

Brother Vision Nary reached for his camera on his way out the door to his truck. A rare snow shower was blanketing everything in white, and he was going to create a photo journal of his trip to the office that morning. As he left his driveway, daylight was just revealing the beauty of the snow that had begun to fall an hour earlier. The snow had taken the local weather forecasters by surprise. About every five years a winter storm would paralyze the capital city with sleet and ice. Real snow came to the city only once every twenty years or so.

He thought to himself as he pulled onto Highway 42 Folks around here have trouble driving in the rain, let alone the snow. Sure enough, not two miles down the road, there was a car in the ditch. The driver had slid through the curve and off the road. As Vision passed with the passenger window down he snapped a picture of the driver standing beside his car with his cell phone to his ear calling someone for help. Vision was glad he had bought his four-wheel drive pickup some four months earlier.

As the snow continued to fall, it forced everyone to slow down. Brother Nary's usual twenty minute trip to work was going to take a lot longer. As he came to a stop to allow someone to make a u-turn in the middle of the road he thought She must have heard the radio announcement that the schools are closing and that she needs to pick up her kids.

As the traffic waited for her to complete the u-turn, Vision thought about the question that Pastor Red Brick had asked the week after the Pastors' Conference. Usually he could respond quickly to almost any question a pastor or church member would ask, but this time he was in a quandary.

His dilemma had grown over the past three weeks from Pastor Red Brick's question immediately following the quarterly Pastor's Conference. One of Red's new members had questioned him concerning the scriptural basis for the local Association. Following the pastors' meeting Red had taken Brother Nary to eat at his favorite seafood restaurant where they discussed the question. Fortunately, Vision had completed his own search of the Book of Acts the week before and was able to show Pastor Red Brick the scriptural basis for a group of churches working cooperatively together (see Good News vol. 39, issue 6).

With the scriptural basis for the local Association established, Pastor Red Brick had called the next week with another question from his new member Babe N. DeFaif. Babe had asked, "What does the Association do and how does it do its work?"

Red explained to Brother Vision that when he gave his usual answer, "The Association helps churches do together what they are unable to do by themselves," he saw that the answer did not register with Babe.

Babe rephrased the question, "No, Pastor. You do not understand. I want to know 'With what ministries does the Association assist the churches in which I can participate?'"

Although Pastor Red Brick had led the White Column Church to participate in most of the ministries with which the Association aided the churches, he did not know all of them. During his conversation with Babe he realized that he needed to ask Brother Vision Nary for a list of all the ministries with which the Association assisted the churches. He also realized that he needed to become more involved in the work of the Association so that he would be more aware of all that the Association helped the church do.

Another traffic stop due to the snow on the road allowed Vision to photograph a crepe myrtle with its red and yellow leaves and black seed pods covered in snow. What a beautiful world God has made. Brother Nary thought to himself.

As traffic began to move again, Vision pondered his dilemma and realized that here was an opportunity. In all his years of service no one had ever asked him a question quite like Pastor Red Brick. For the first time a new church member from a background completely foreign to the denominational structure wanted to be involved but did not know how.

He thought to himself How do you explain to someone with no denominational background all that we do? As he considered this, he realized that as the number of ministries with which the Association assisted the churches had grown over the years, no concerted effort had been made to educate the church members about those ministries. In reality, no effort had been made to discover all the different ministries in which all of the churches were involved.

As traffic slowed to a halt again, Brother Nary reached for a bulletin from Sunday's worship service and began to make a list of the ministries with which the Association assisted the churches. Before long he realized that he needed to create two lists, one for ministry and one for administration. The two lists included some of the following:

Notes from Dennis Allen

Assistant to the Executive Director

Challenges and changes always have been a part of life and they always will be. This is our time to face some very difficult challenges and changes. The question is how will we respond to them? Those Baptists who have gone before us seem to me to have met their challenges and changes very well. They faced a Civil War, economic depression, world wars, civil unrest. I know they made some mistakes but from my view point they did a great job and responded with faith and courage.

Now it is our time to face our challenges and changes. Once again I will ask the question How will we respond and what will those who come after us have to say about us? The challenges and changes we face are enormous. We face global terrorism, an economy in freefall, a nation clamoring for change without knowing what change it wants! Moral values and common sense seems to have gone out to lunch.

I believe our greatest challenge is to our faith in Jesus Christ, the Bible as the inspired Word of God, and our worship. For example, the Cooperative Program plan of giving and the idea of churches working together for the glory of God is being questioned by some in our midst who must not know our history.

How do we respond? Our Bible tells us plainly how we are to respond to such challenges. It says let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus. What would it mean to have the mind of Christ? It would mean to have complete trust in the Heavenly Father, love for all men, compassion for those who are suffering and are in darkness; it is to always edify the church, share the Gospel message of salvation and forgiveness of sins. There has never been a time in history when we need to stand together as churches united to reach out to a hurting world than the present.

I look forward to working with Dr. Conerly and all our churches to meet the challenges and changes of 2009. Remember your Associational staff is here to serve you.

May Day! May Day! Pirates on Board!!!

*Sylvester Wilson
Gonzales Seamen's Center Director*

At the Gonzales Seamen's Center, Captain Nico Mobach (Holland), speaks into my tape recorder and points to areas on the world map. He vividly explains reasons for navigating his ship (M/V Pac Deneb) along an extreme southern detour route from Indonesia, around South Africa's Cape of Good Hope, then across the Atlantic Ocean, and finally to our United States' Mississippi River ports. He had determined to avoid the typical, shorter route via the Indian Ocean, Gulf of Aden, into the Red Sea and out through the Suez Canal; into the Mediterranean Sea then across the Atlantic to the United States. In a passionate Dutch accent, metered with professional poise, Captain Nico declares that he navigated his ship along that route of extra days sailing and costly fuel consumption for one reason – the safety of his crew! All because the regular route through the Gulf of Aden would expose his ship and crew to the ominous threat of attack and hijacking by heavily armed Somali pirates in speedboats!

The Gonzales Seamen's Center is a cooperative ministry of the churches of the Baptist Association of Greater Baton Rouge. It is a long-established ministry to international seafarers and local port workers. In view of the shifting dynamics of world trade, regional merchant vessel traffic, U.S. Customs and Border Protection regulations, individual port policies, and our own operating capacities, the year 2008 yielded some interesting ministry statistics:

• Seafarers Visiting Center	1080
• Countries Represented	32
• Int'l & Domestic Phone Calls	1150+ (est.)
• Bible Studies at Center	12
• Bible Studies on Ship	2
• Plan-of-Salvation Presentations	1013
• JESUS Film DVDs & Mini-CDs	180

Perhaps well over one million merchant seafarers labor aboard ships that ply the oceans and waterways of the Earth. Many visiting the Gonzales Seamen's Center profess to be Christian. Others are Muslim, Hindu, Buddhist, Animist, or declare no profession of faith as agnostics or atheists. One call for Bible study and prayer in our little chapel was attended by Roman Catholics, Hindus, and a Muslim! A majority of seafarers are at sea from six to nine months at a time. This prolonged separation from family and spiritual support systems could be their most grueling hardship. These men and women who work aboard ships have common physical, emotional, and spiritual needs that are common to us, but often those needs are intensified by difficulties and dangers only seafarers themselves can explain.

"May Day!!!!...May Day!!!!...May Day!!!!...Pirates on board!!! . . . Then, silence." An officer of the M/V Lucia Bulker was describing to me what he and fellow officers heard squawking over their ship's radio as they navigated open waters of the Gulf of Aden between Yemen and Somalia.

The officer explained that another ship, carrying Russian military tanks, M/V Karagol, was coming "under attack" by pirates. "It was 12 nautical miles away from us. We could see it on radar and read its AIS signature," he explained with a gaze half a world away. He described how merchant ships are required to sail across the Gulf of Aden inside a security path called a "zone" patrolled by allied warships. But the "Gulf of Aden is too big!" Pirates in speed boats still attack ships. Warships just run them off. So, then they come back and attack ships again. For defense, "we prepare water cannons and some metal [objects]," but the pirates have guns! "So we hear the radio distress call: 'May Day...May Day...May Day...' Then nothing – no reply from any warship. Then we hear: 'Pirates on board!' Then, silence. Nothing. That ship was behind us in the 'zone,' but, what good is the 'zone' [patrolled by warships] if pirates still attack you in the 'zone?' The life of a seaman is already very hard. Now we have to worry about pirates" – being attacked, hijacked, or killed at sea!

Visiting the Seamen's Center at the same time, were five Polish seamen, in addition to those nine from the M/V Lucia Bulker. Amidst handling international phone cards, providing cookies and drinks, figuring out laptop PC hookups, taking photographs, giving directions, answering questions, solving dialing dilemmas, discerning spiritual needs, showing individual attention, formulating Bible study, prayer and counseling approaches, I heard the pirate attack drama a total of three times from three different men. Yet how many times will they relive that frightening episode while coursing lonely seas on the 32 day journey to China – against a backdrop of sun, stars, and life's toughest questions?

With ditty bags and a JESUS Film DVD in hand, M/V Lucia Bulker crew members heard the powerfully encouraging words of the Apostle Paul read from Romans 8:28-39. Then, I looked into each man's eyes and prayed for them, their crew, and families back home. After hardy handshakes and gleaming expressions of gratitude, each man left the Center to go wait for a taxi ride back to their ship.

In these statistics and stories, do you see the pressing need for more volunteers to regularly minister at the Seamen's Center – minister to the nations for Christ's sake? (Matt. 28:18-20; Acts 1:8). God bless you and thanks to those who already volunteer and support this ministry in so many ways! May you keep up the Lord's good and mighty work of salvation among the nations and just go right ahead inspiring others to do the same to stand together as churches united to reach out to a hurting world!

LSU BCM

Steve Masters, Director

In December, the Baptist Collegiate Ministry at LSU returned to the Bowery Mission in New York City for the third year. During the seven-day trip, eighteen BCM students served alongside the staff as they offered three meals and three chapel services a day to the homeless and poverty-stricken in Manhattan.

In addition to the daily services that the mission offers, it hosts a six-month residential Discipleship Institute that helps people transition out of destructive patterns and living situations. Their holistic approach addresses everything from drug and alcohol addictions to family reconciliation and career training; all of this is taught with Christian principles and the call for absolute dependence on God. Residents in the institute are exposed daily to biblical teaching and participate in scripture memorization.

As the LSU BCM students led these residents and the homeless community in several chapel services, two very different worlds joined together in authentic worship of the one Sovereign Lord. The residents made requests for songs and offered encouraging feedback during meal times about all the scripture readings, testimonies, and sermons led by students. "We like it when you teach us the hard stuff," one resident shared.

The students were able to model the biblical truth they shared as they helped the mission in dozens of projects ranging from cleaning and organizing to assisting with food preparation and wrapping presents for the residents. Clothing closet organizers were particularly grateful because students helped with the sorting and distribution of the particularly high volume of donations that came during the Christmas season. Whether handing out food in the parks or preparing toiletry kits, everyone served and loved the people of New York.

*The BCM began traveling to New York annually to minister to firefighters after the September 11 attacks. Even though primary efforts of the December trip switched to the Bowery mission in 2007, the BCM has cooked jambalaya for Ladder 20 in the Bowery neighborhood during the trip each year.

Praying For Our New President

Mary B. Smith, BAGBR Prayer Team Volunteer

No matter what your political persuasion, our new president needs your prayers and mine. If you are having trouble praying for the president, let me make some suggestions on how to pray:

- He has a family. You know what that is like. Pray that he will be a strong father. Pray for Michele to be a loving and wise mother. Pray for safety for their children as they adjust to their new home, school, and city. Pray that their family will be cemented together with love in spite of the hectic schedule that they have to keep.
- You and I believe in the security of this country. Pray that the President will seek wise counsel and make wise decisions regarding the families of this nation. Pray that God will protect our nation from invasion from evil and those who hate the things that God loves.
- You love God and His Word. Pray that the President will be a seeker of God. Pray that he will realize that God is Sovereign and all wisdom comes from His Word. Pray that President Obama will be a man of the Word and have a hunger for the Word of God that drives him to the Bible daily. Pray that he will clearly acknowledge that his position and power comes from God.
- We are all very busy and caught up in the chaos of our world. Pray for President Obama know peace and to hear God's voice above the chatter of the world. Pray that he will seek to please God and not people.
- Do you fear the future? There are negative prognosticators out there that can strike fear in our hearts. Pray that God will keep his heart steadfast and that he will trust in the Lord who is His shield and defender.
- He should be a man of integrity. Pray that the president will live a life of character that is beyond reproach. Ask God to teach him to fear Him rather than what man can do to him.
- Do you ever question where you stand spiritually? Pray that President Obama knows that he knows the Lord Jesus Christ as His Savior and will not be ashamed to speak out about his salvation.
- Do you ever face circumstances that you have no answer for? James 1:5 says that if anyone lacks wisdom, let him ask of God. Pray that President Obama will unashamedly seek God first for the wisdom that he needs in unknown and all decisions.
- Pray that our president will have discipline. He must remain faithful to his marriage, pure in spirit and self-controlled, and quick to repent of sin so that he can keep the prayer line to God open. These are disciplines we as Christians should strive for.

As we pray for one another, remain encouraged that you are being a blessing to others. On a related note, the Association Prayer Team is in dire need of volunteers. Please email norma@bagbr.org or call the office at 225-296-3943 to inquire. Thanks to all the prayer warriors in our churches!
